COMMON QUESTIONS

What is Direct Screen Printing?

Direct Screen Printing is a specialized process where ink is applied and cured directly to the bottle resulting in an eye catching and durable design. Printing directly onto the bottle removes the need for paper or film labels that can easily tear, crease, become damp, or form bubbles.

What inks and treatments are available?

Ceramic Inks are permanently fused to the glass itself through a high temperature firing process, resulting in an extremely resilient and highly durable design that resists scratching or fading through its lifetime.

UV Inks are cured directly to glass using UV lamps, allowing for a precise and vivid print ideal for personalization. UV inks excel in providing the broadest color palette selection available, and are able to achieve the perfect Pantone match for your brand's artwork.

Spray Coating on bottles offers the ability to create a customized design using opaque or translucent ink in various colors and finishes. This technique allows for diverse customization options, including fades, gradients, frosted effects, and textured finishes.

Further elevate your design with more custom options including precious metal inks, medallion application and 360 degree wrap printing. Our team will work with you to figure out the best decoration method for your design.

What is the price and what are the minimums?

Although we have no minimum order, it generally makes economic sense to run at least one pallet of bottles. Price is determined by a number of factors such as the quantity of containers, number of colors used, registration requirements, the size and shape of the container, the number of sides printed, and the use of precious metals like gold and silver. By supplying us with your design we can provide a quotation right away. Additionally, if you have a specific budget in mind, we can offer design guidelines to assist you.

What are the order lead times?

Lead time is determined by the amount of orders we have in house. Different seasons and markets cause the lead times log to vary. For planning purposes, you should plan on 3 to 5 weeks from approved art. Your sales or customer service representative will have the latest information on our current schedule.

Does Stanpac supply bottles?

You will need to supply your own bottles to Stanpac. However, we work with many glass manufacturers and distributors that provide all sorts of glass containers both domestic and international. We can assist you in obtaining just what you need from one of these sources.

What about shipping?

Freight is handled in a number of ways. Your bottle distributor can deliver directly to Stanpac, we have our own trucking company that can arrange pick-up and delivery, or you can take care of the trucking yourself. Whatever is most convenient and economical for you.

What other services do you offer?

We've customized our service to cater to all print sizes, ranging from full truckloads to 1 pallet orders. We offer custom case/pallet assembly, along with repack services for customers that incorporate custom boxes. We can also assist with inventory/warehousing programs to support customers who are dealing with space limitations and specific ordering requirements.
